The publishing of this volume of THE HACAWA is an effort on the part of the staff and the senior class to picture the actual campus life of the past year, to record the numerous activities of the student body, and to preserve the pleasant memories of the associations which hold a large place in the life of each individual student.

The theme of this book is centered around the life of Martin Luther, as an expression of deep admiration for the great reformer, in recognition of the significance which his life and work had in the establishment of Protestantism, and in realization of the part his ideals have played in the founding of such institutions as Lenoir Rhyne College.

Dedication

The ages have produced men who have wrought mightily in changing the course of the world's history—men who during their lives have unceasingly tried to correct the existing evils. Yet such men would have labored in vain had there not been other men in later years willing to carry on the work so nobly begun.

In recognition of just such a man who is numbered among those upholding the Christian ideals which men like Martin Luther strove to attain, we dedicate this issue of Mary likes to smile the bumps of life away and usually comes through with a song; but she is to be commended for her earnestness of purpose, high sense of honor and duty, and all-round personality.

A black and white portrait of a young woman with short, dark hair styled in a bob. She is wearing a white, scalloped collar over a dark top. She is looking slightly to the left of the camera with a gentle expression. The background is dark and out of focus.

Even tho' Frances came to Lenoir-Rhyne in her junior year, she has been able to fall right in and find her place with the Senior class. Music seems to be her chief vocational interest. In this field we wish her success.

Attractive, intelligent, capable, sensible, fun-loving Mae—an outstanding girl indeed. Her open face and winning personality have constantly attracted to her friends and admirers.

GRANITE QUARRY, NORTH CAROLINA

Bennie has concluded that loud talking and momentary spurts of enthusiasm will not avail much, and he sticks to his conclusion. He is deliberate and sure and does not get excited over every little happening. He is a lover of sports and has made the varsity teams in baseball, basketball, and football.

TROUTMAN, NORTH CAROLINA

Many responsible positions have fallen to Haskell's lot, all of which he has filled very nobly. He is interested in varied fields—in athletics, in journalism, and, so it is rumored, in Virginia.

In Clay we find a person who does not show his entire personality at the first meeting. He seems to enjoy being “hard,” but does not always succeed in the attempt, as he is unable to conceal his truly kind and friendly nature.

Senior Class History

"All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players."

An historical play is just nearing its close on this great stage of the universe. It has been a long production; and now as it ends, we, the players, prepare to go out into other parts of this great stage and take parts in other plays just as important as this.

Beginning in the fall of 1928, these players made their first entrance in this theatrical production. The cast consisted of about one hundred and twenty-one characters—orators, debaters, athletes, and musicians. Each knew his cue, and before long each knew the part he was to play. So when the time for action came everyone was ready to respond. The director for Act I was chosen by the cast—Mr. Lee Shipton. During this act, the athletes, represented by boys and girls, became the star characters; and the act closed with a decided victory in their favor.

The curtain fell for a period of three months, during which time the new director, Mr. Rufus Rhyne, began looking over his work for the next act, and the players studied their parts. Some of the old players had dropped out and new ones took their places. During this act time had to be given to those who were just starting their play of four years' length. These play-makers were initiated into the art, and then some real helpful advice was given. Again the athletic characters stood in the foreground, with the spotlight focused on them.

The third act, directed by Mr. Haskell Troutman, was evidently the act chosen by the characters in which they were to show their true ability in play-making. Leaders in social life were pictured when the Juniors successfully "pulled off" a Hallowe'en Carnival. The athletes still held their ground on the front stage by holding championship in girls' and boys' basketball. The debaters became stars when the majority of Lenoir Rhyne's best speakers were found to be Juniors. And then came the big event of the Junior-Senior Banquet, when the cast of characters showed their ability more than ever to work together as one.

Act IV is now being staged. It again features orators, debaters, and athletes. But in spite of the capable direction of Mr. Lloyd Little, a dim mist seems to be hanging over the play. The curtain is almost ready to fall. Perhaps the characters do not like to think of this as the end of a great historical event in their life. Perhaps they cannot tell just what will be the type of the next play in which they will take part. Will it be tragical, comical, or full of romantic love? Only time can tell—the time that will come probably after the last scene of the last act—yea, even after the curtain falls.

Class Prophecy

It was a beautiful night, full moon, stars, and everything, and I had to work. For months I had been putting it off, but tonight the editor told me that if the class prophecy was to go in THE HACAWA, I must have it written by morning. Well, that was that, and I didn't know any more about prophesying than the man up there in the moon.

"Well, I ain't so dumb."

What in the world was that? Some one in that tree above me? No, the voice didn't come from there.

"What's troublin' you, kid?"

Believe it or not, it was the man in the moon who was thus disturbing my deep thinking. Maybe he could help me. The ancients used to tell of the future by studying the stars, and the moon looked a blame sight bigger to me, so I just says to him:

"I'd sure appreciate it, Mister, if you could tell me what'll become of these classmates of mine in the next ten years or so."

"O. K., buddy, anything to help a fellow out."

And with that he gave me the following story just as it is written, except that I had to change it in several places, for (now don't let this get out) the old chap doesn't use very good English.

Harry Arndt is principal of one of the largest high schools in Catawba County.

Elbert Bowman is a prosperous saloon proprietor in Washington, D. C.

Thousands sought in vain the other night to get in an already packed opera house to hear Pearl Ballentine sing.

Sara Boyd is doing research work in history. The leading universities are waiting eagerly for the outcome of her work.

Nora Deal and Ruth Steelman have gone abroad. They will spend several weeks in Rome.

Erskine Dysart is art director at Catawba College.

Grace Earnhardt is doing welfare work.

Two big league teams met the other day in what proved to be a mound duel between Mesimer and Erdley. The game was finally won in the thirteenth inning by Lloyd Little's home run for the Yanks.

Robert Gribble, director of the Ridgeview Playmakers, is busy rehearsing for "All God's Children Got Wings."

Heman Hall spends the time not taken up with classroom work in his laboratory.

Caring for a husband and seven children takes up most of Ruby Heavener's time.

Mary W. Hoover has made The Lincoln Times a daily paper.

Besides writing several books, plays, and articles for the leading magazines, Emma has a set of little brown-eyed twins, boy and girl. She puts them through their paces daily, for she is determined that they shall be athletes like their parents.

Ernest Huffman is superintendent of one of the largest furniture factories in North Carolina.

Katherine Johnston, Anna K. Greever, Mary Ellen Speagle, Rebecca Winters, Rachel Cloninger, and Marie Huss attended a dinner the other day given by Rufus Rhyne and Grier Sherrill, high powered salesmen for the Aluminum Cooking Utensil Company of New Kensington, Pa. After an appealing two hours' speech in which they proved to the ladies that they could not afford not to buy the cooking utensils and that the set was absolutely necessary to the health and happiness of their dear ones, they received orders for three wooden spoons, six fruit jar lids, and a bottle opener.

Gordon Keller is gaining fame and fortune as a divorce lawyer in Reno.

Rebecca Lawrence, when not busy with her work as organist, is writing poetry of youth, moonlight, and romance.

Claude Lyerly is studying at Duke University, where he spends most of the time in the chemistry laboratory.

The girls are all very fond of Mary Marshburn, who is dean of women at Lenoir Rhyne College. She never rings the bell when things are just beginning to get interesting.

Frances McCardwell, with the aid of her victrola, is teaching music appreciation.

Helen Miller has at last convinced the students that the beautiful new library at Lenoir Rhyne is not a place for visiting. This was made much easier for her by the students' new and friendlier attitude toward authority brought about since the board saw fit to allow dancing and bridge playing. The students no longer have to use the library as a last resort for social gatherings.

A new course in dancing has been added to the curriculum. Edythe Wagg, after several years in New York, has returned to take charge of the new department.

Mary K. Miller is living in Lincoln County, where her husband is engaged in scientific farming.

Mary Y. Miller is also happily married. She has a couple of little boys that are going to be all-state football players in the years to come.

Rabbit Moose is doing splendid work as a minister of the gospel. At present the only thing he goes to the fair ground for is to see the fair, for he keeps her and the bunnies at home.

Bertie Paysour's basketball team won the county championship this year.

Kathleen Ridenhour is painting beautiful pictures.

Large crowds have attended Fred Rocket's revival meetings this week.

Cora Sease, as leader of the Woman's Temperance League, is working hard to bring back the Eighteenth Amendment.

Rix Setzer has obtained her Ph.D. in history.

Brandon Smith is editing a radical newspaper.

Nellie Smyre and Louise Sox are teaching in Hickory High School.

The products of Harold Sox's fancy woodwork shop are in demand everywhere. He recently sent a shipment to Germany.

Every Sunday morning Dermont Swicegood's sermons may be heard over the Columbia System.

Harry Swofford is making a success as principal of a consolidated school.

The Lenoir Rhyne Playmakers are planning a trip to New York to see Mae Teufel in her latest play. Since this is the last opportunity to see Miss Teufel before she goes abroad, some of the faculty also intend to make the trip. Perhaps the school will be closed for a few days.

Bennie Troutman is head coach at Rockwell High School.

Haskell Troutman is manager of the Weiler Department Store in Marion, Va.

Clay Wright sold Lenoir Rhyne one of the latest tri-motor planes to carry her athletic teams on their trips.

Nina Yount is deeply interested in the state tournament being played at L. R. C. Lex's team stands a good chance of winning.

Leona Wyant has found that being a minister's wife keeps one very busy.

Cline Anthony brings the mail to the college every morning.

Louise Abernathy is a Representative to Congress from North Carolina.

"Anything else you'd like to know," asked the old man.

"No, I guess that'll be all, thank you."

"Well, I'll be seein' you," said the old man going behind a cloud.

History

With our group arriving at the third milestone, we look back now over nearly three years of happy and willing endeavor. Next year will find us listed as sedate Seniors. In our strivings toward bettering our present state, the motto, Excelsior—Onward and Upward—has been ever before us.

We have done much already in our stay here, but there is much yet to be done, and the Junior Class of 1932 will spare no pain in seeing that it is accomplished. We work toward that which is progressive. We strive toward higher things. We answer the call of ambition, for in power we feel there is bliss.

We have won fame in our days at Lenoir Rhyne; on the athletic field, in music halls, on the speaker's platform, and in the classroom. The class is proud to have as members young men and women who seek toward the better things in life. We have profited by mistakes made; we have worked in a spirit of coöperation; we have labored with loyal hearts ever in a spirit of devotion to the college that is ours.

In anticipating our final year at Lenoir Rhyne it is always with the knowledge that when the benediction is pronounced upon us on graduation day, our hearts will pronounce a like benediction upon Lenoir Rhyne College and on all for which she stands.

History

A new era of our life began, and many of our day-dreams became in reality College Days, when on Monday night, September 7, 1931, we were welcomed to Lenoir Rhyne College. Whatever loneliness and homesickness we might have felt upon our arrival was soon forgotten around the banquet tables that night. Perhaps we little remember what was said, but no doubt we still recall the resulting sensation that was ours on entering upon our college career.

At first we were the victims of many pranks, some of which seemed somewhat preposterous. Never shall we forget the pajama parade around Mauney Hall one night about midnight—marching to the tune of "How Green I Am," nor the time when the girls came to lunch wearing boxes for shoes. On our part we look forward with no retaliatory spirit, for the vestiges of a past age are passing from the best schools.

On January 7, 1932, we elected our class officers and thus assumed our place among the regularly organized groups of the campus. Seemingly more important, we were privileged to remove our "rat" caps after the Christmas holidays.

While looking back over our common history, we find that our class has been well represented in practically every organization and college activity. Although our Freshman year is almost over yet we see much accomplished. But we look forward with still greater zeal when time shall have built a bigger and better Lenoir Rhyne, one that not only we, but others shall be proud to call Alma Mater.

History

We have learned here that "The chief ingredient of success is hard work." And when our college days at Lenoir Rhyne have passed, it will be with jealous but proud hearts that we will leave and invite others to come and measure their efforts and labors as we have.

After competent instruction we have filled our hours of recreation with real pleasure, and built lasting friendships.

While we, classmates after one short year, are no longer members of the Lenoir Rhyne College student body, we pledge our allegiance to always sponsor the progress of our Alma Mater.

We are proud of Lenoir Rhyne College; may our success make her proud of us.

The College Government, having undergone various changes in former years, has finally come to rest in a combination of student and faculty government—the larger part of responsibility being vested in the student body, the faculty acting as advisors in major problems exercising final authority in important decisions. The policy has developed a spirit of democracy and created a feeling of harmony between the students and the administration of the college. The fine fellowship which has developed through this functioning of college government has been an outstanding characteristic of campus life.

This commission arranges the non-academic calendar and approves all social events, striving to give students the maximum number, yet complying with college standards.

As the principal body of our Faculty-Student system of government, the cabinet serves in many capacities: as a disciplinary organization; as a means by which student opinions may be brought to the attention of the administration and as a body to act for the students with the faculty to bring about finer and more harmonious relationships between the faculty and the students and between the students themselves.

The Cabinet is composed of twelve members: one representative from the faculty; the three officers of the student body; two representatives from each of the three upper classes, and one representative of the Freshman class to be chosen at the beginning of the second semester.

The Mauney Hall Commission, which functions as a branch of the student government at Lenoir Rhyne, strives to carry out the regulations of dormitory life in accordance with the college standards. Although it is the duty of this body to take firm measures in disciplinary matters when occasions of misconduct occur, its chief purpose is to promote a spirit of friendship and Christian fellowship and to impress upon the girls of the dormitory the responsibility they share in making life here wholesome, congenial, harmonious and worthwhile.

The commission is composed of three Seniors, one of whom is house president; two Juniors, one Sophomore and one Freshman elected after the first semester.

The Iota Chi Sigma is an honorary journalistic fraternity which has as its object a purpose for advancing journalism on Lenoir Rhyne campus. This organization fosters a feeling of friendship between the staffs of the several publications on the campus and also those interested in journalism on other campuses. The fraternity also affords recognition to all those who have been members of the staffs of the college papers by making them eligible for membership to this organization after having completed a certain prescribed amount of work. The Iota Chi Sigmas have always done all within their power to make possible better student publications on our campus.

The 1932 Hacawa

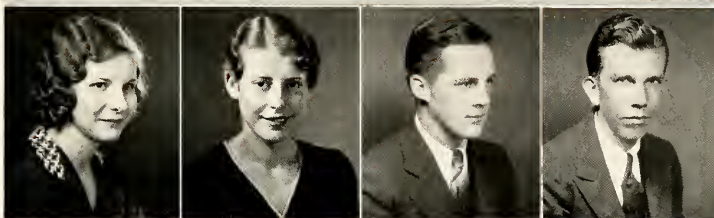

It is the greatness and inspiration of such a noble man as Martin Luther that has given us the desire and ambition to make the twenty-third volume of the HALLS, CAMPUS, WALLS a book of real merit. We have attempted to give to you in a pictorial way the life as exemplified on the Lenoir Rhyne campus and to offer a slight reward for the numerous days devoted to student activities. Since the task of editing a college annual is decidedly more difficult than most the observers realize, this book may not be all that it is expected to be; however, we hope that we have not failed altogether, and that this publication will serve to recall to the minds of the readers the significance of the name Martin Luther throughout protestantism and in the principles and traditions of our own college.

Every staff has its handicaps and troubles, but we feel that we have had more than our share. On account of the depression, many students were unable to buy a book and many more could not even have their picture made. The advertising was very hard to secure on account of the hard times, practically every advertiser was forced to reduce his advertisement, and many were compelled to cancel theirs. By changing THE HACAWA from a Senior Class publication to a student body publication, we were made the victims of pioneers in this phase of journalism. These handicaps, coupled with our inexperience, have proven to be great obstacles in publishing this year's HACAWA.

The new status of THE HACAWA has met with fair success only. We feel that a far greater need is the fixing of a standardized publication fee whereby every student will be able to have his picture made and be entitled to receive a copy of the book. Not until this is done will THE HACAWA be put on a business basis and be able to measure up to the highest standard of excellence.

In perusing these pages, then may the readers not be too critical, but may they try to recognize in our 1932 HACAWA at least something worthwhile.

The Lenoir Rhynean

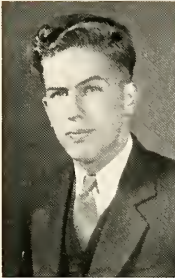

"For a greater Lenoir Rhyne," has been the theme and motto of the college weekly, in the efforts of the staff to portray the life and activities of the campus. We have tried to take a fair and considerate stand on any questions of fact or policy concerning Lenoir Rhyne College or the various activities of the students, though appearing radical at times, realizing that if progress is to be made in the growth of our college, this progress may best be brought about through the efforts of the representatives of the students and of the administration working coöperatively. We have endeavored to make the columns of the Lenoir Rhynean the mirror of student opinion, to work for the things that the students want.

During the past year the Lenoir Rhynean has been brought under the direct control of the student body, filling the positions of the staff by means of competitive elections, and giving the editor the power to remove any members of the staff who fails to perform the duties of his office. Through the constitution adopted by the student body, the publication of the weekly has been placed on a more firm basis, the staff being responsible to the student body.

The staff has as in the past been handicapped by unjust criticisms by the fact that members of the staff have shifted their share of the work on the publication to the shoulders of others, and by the attitude of many of the students who seem to feel the Lenoir Rhynean is not truly representative of the student body.

The coöperation of staff members, the student body and the administration of the college will make a "Greater Lenoir Rhynean for a Greater Lenoir Rhyne."

Intercollegiate Forensic Activities

The forensic season of 1930-1931 upheld the high standards set by former years, for in debating as well as in oratory Lenoir Rhyne continued to win honors.

All debates by both men and women were on the question, "Resolved, that the nations should adopt a policy of free trade." As only one former debater among the boys, namely Lee Shipton, was available, new material had to be developed. K. Y. Huddle and Royd Preslar, with Leo Smith as alternate, upheld the affirmative, while Lex Barkley and Lee Shipton, with Cade Shaver as substitute, defended the negative. On February 28 the affirmative clashed with a team from Waynesburg College, Pa., and according to an unofficial audience decision, won about three to one. On March 6, the customary triangular debate was held, the affirmative team at home bowing to High Point College three to one, but the negative team winning at Guilford College by the same score. In a dual debate with Elon College on March 12, the affirmative traveling, both Lenoir Rhyne teams won, the affirmative by a split decision and the negative by a unanimous vote.

The girl debaters likewise were successful in their efforts. Since only Harriet Teufel, as a former debater was available, Mae Teufel, Helen Miller, Pearl Ballentine, Lois Peery, and Emma Fritz joined the ranks. The Teufel sisters, with Lois Peery as alternate, upheld the affirmative, while Helen Miller and Emma Fritz formed the regular negative team. This team with Pearl Ballentine met Asheville Normal School in a non-decision debate at Hickory, March 24, and the affirmative team journeyed to Asheville for a similar debate April 7. Two days later this team defeated the Appalachian State Teachers College girls two to one at Hickory, while the negative team won over Appalachian at Boone on April 14 by a unanimous decision. Two days later they defeated Winthrop College at Rock Hill in South Carolina by a decisive score, and thus brought the season to a close without a defeat. Of the eight decision debates, Lenoir Rhyne won seven.

In oratory new honors were added to former achievements. At the State Oratorical Contest at High Point, April 10, Royd Preslar, and at the State Peace Contest at Asheville, April 27, Frederick Moretz made a splendid showing. At the Women's Oratorical Contest at Hickory on April 14, Harriet Teufel, winner of the State Peace Contest the year before, won first place. As executive secretary and treasurer of the North Carolina Intercollegiate Forensic Association, Dr. Albert Keiser, head of the English department, directed both the State Oratorical Contest and the Women's Oratorical; he also serves as secretary of the State Peace Association. This year the State Oratorical Contest will be held April 22 at Lenoir Rhyne College. Lex Barkley, a junior in the college, heads the association as president for the year.

Work in oratory and debate at Lenoir Rhyne is receiving national recognition, for her orators and debaters are admitted to membership in Pi Kappa Delta, the largest and strictest forensic honor society in the United States. As in the past, selection is by merit through competitive try-outs and preliminary oratorical contests. The forensic coach firmly holds that all forensic activities should be built upon a broad foundation and lead to genuine development of those who take part. No shams are tolerated. Hard work and thorough preparation are considered the cornerstones of success; a spirit of absolute fairness and honorable conduct is of incomparably greater importance than the mere winning of decisions.

The purpose of the Alpha Psi Omega is to stimulate interest in dramatic activities, to secure for the college the advantages and mutual helpfulness provided by a large national honorary fraternity and, by means of electing students to membership, serve as a reward for their worthy efforts in participating in the plays staged by the playmakers.

The national organization issues yearly the Playbill, a magazine containing important news from the various casts. Quarterly it publishes The Call Board, a newspaper which gives detailed reports from all local groups. Through these publications, Lenoir Rhyne has been recognized in more than one hundred other colleges and universities in the United States.

The individual benefits are those gained through the work accomplished before the student is admitted to the fraternity and the requirements demanded of him after he becomes a member. He is duty-bound to uphold the cardinal principles of the fraternity—virtue, temperance, patience, godliness, and obedience. The motto is: "Seek a life useful."

Lenoir Rhyne Playmakers

Despite the constant hard work required of the Playmakers, there is so much of joy and interest in this game of make believe that Playmaking is quite popular in Lenoir Rhyne activities. The class has become so large that more productions are necessary to take care of everyone.

Miss Pearl Setzer, who very capably directs the group, gives to the students in the classroom instructions in lighting, acting, make-up, management and publicity. She discusses with the class the outstanding plays and playwrights, both classical and modern, and helps them acquire the ability of being good judges of plays as to their value. Chiefly, she stresses the making of original plays and requires each student to write one each semester, the best of which are produced.

It is difficult to review in this short space the many varied and successful performances of the past year. A. A. Milne's English comedy, "Mr. Pim Passes By," was produced as the annual commencement play last year. Just prior to this presentation an elaborate May Day pageant and four one-act plays for Mothers' Day were given at the combined celebration of the two events.

The high light of last fall was the production of "The Lilies of the Field" by John Hastings Turner. It was given by a strong cast and was received with much favor.

From time to time a number of one-act plays were staged for Y. W. C. A., literary society, and high school programs. The list includes: Tarkington's "Trysting Place," Gerstenburg's "Overtones," Walker's "The Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil" and "Sir David Wears A Crown," Pillot's "My Lady Dreams," Rogers' "Saved," and Crother's "The Rector."

During the Christmas season the impressive play, "Why the Chimes Rang," by MacFadden, was effectively enacted at the college church.

Just after the Christmas holidays, work was begun in earnest on the original play contest. Of about thirty plays offered twelve were chosen by the class to be read at the annual Author's Reading, held January 12. The judges selected as the four best "Jist A-Livin," by Robert Shelby of Gastonia; "Hard Times," by Rufus Rhyne of Gastonia; "A Winter's Night," by Edythe Wagg of Rutherford College, and "Repudiated," by Malcolm Reese of Hickory. These plays were produced by the Playmakers on March 1.

"Jist A-Livin" won first place in the State Contest for original plays sponsored by the Carolina Dramatic Association and it was presented at the annual festival of that association held at Chapel Hill, April 1-2. For the production contest at the same meeting the Playmakers entered the delightful comedy, "A Wedding," by John Kirkpatrick.

As a new venture for the Playmakers they entered the radio play contest for southern colleges, sponsored by the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech and broadcast "Jist A-Livin" from station W B T at Charlotte.

The work of the Playmakers is indeed creditable. With all the class steadily growing stronger, we dare not predict its future accomplishments.

A coveted award to efficient playmakers is election to membership in the Alpha Psi Omega Dramatic Fraternity.

The Glee Club of Lenoir Rhyne College has been in existence for seven years. During the first three years it united with the Playmaking Department in producing an operetta every year. In the fall of 1928 Frederick Stanley Smith, organist and composer of Philadelphia, Pa., was appointed Dean of the Music Department at Lenoir Rhyne. Realizing the value of the Glee Club as an advertising medium for the college, Professor Smith made it a separate and distinct organization. Try-outs were held and the names of the successful candidates were duly posted. Rehearsals then began in earnest. In December the club gave its first concert, the program consisting of vocal solos; male, female, and mixed quartets and choruses; and piano solos.

The first season was a highly successful one, the club appearing in twelve nearby cities and towns and before the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs. The second and third seasons the club continued to improve, rendering more difficult music, and spreading the gospel of good music wherever they appeared.

During the present season, Professor Smith inaugurated the Vested Choir. While the organization still retains the name of the Glee Club, it is in reality an "a capella" choir. The program consists entirely of mixed choruses. Works of the old masters are presented with a freshness and spontaneity seldom surpassed by more experienced singers. After a concert in the village chapel (Episcopal) at Pinehurst, N. C., the club was immediately booked for a return engagement.

The Glee Club has won an enviable place in the affections of the faculty and student body of Lenoir Rhyne as well as in the hearts of all Lutherans in this vicinity.

The Y. W. C. A. is a group of girls who unite to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God, to have a part in making this life possible for all people, in this task to seek to understand Jesus and to follow him.

Although the Young Women's Christian Association has been organized only three years, it has succeeded in developing into one of the leading organizations on the campus. Its work in welcoming the new students and helping them to become accustomed to college life is outstanding. The "big and little sister breakfast" in the woods has become an annual event. It sponsors the faculty reception to the students, plans the Mothers' Day celebration, holds teas, banquets, basketball games, supports a hiking club, visits factories, hold tennis tournaments, gives parties, weiner roasts, welcomes visitors, encourages Bible study and reading, and arranges the chapel program once a month and goes Christmas carolling annually.

Weekly programs are varied and stimulating. The subjects have dealt with etiquette, vocations, music, art, marriage, clothing, sex, birds, ideal girl, happiness, make-up, mythology, and Indians. The programs have taken the forms of plays, discussions, fashion shows, pantomimes and speeches.

The organization has supplied ironing-board covers for the boards in the dormitory and is planning on furnishing completely one of the guest rooms.

The Demosthenean Literary Society was organized in 1928. It has continually grown and has proven to be very beneficial to the students. It is worthwhile in that it provides an opportunity for the individual to have the actual experience of public speaking—a chance to put into practice that which he learns in the classroom.

The programs are interesting and instructive. They deal with varied topics, such as: literary men and women (lives, works, influence), dates (Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine, Easter, and birthdays of famous people), current events, and important world problems. These are presented in the forms of debates, orations, declamations, talks, extemporaneous speeches, impromptu speeches, one-act plays, readings and special music.

All the members participate in the meetings and have been especially willing to coöperate. Occasionally social meetings are held.

The Young Men's Bible Class is composed of all the boys on the campus and any others that may wish to attend. Professor Hackemann is head of this organization and serves as teacher.

The purpose of this class is twofold. To study the Bible and God's word and by so doing we train ourselves to be better Christians; and to uphold the Christian ideals and name of Lenoir Rhyne College.

Every boy is urged to attend this class every Sunday but is not compelled to. It is hoped that they will feel the need of coming and worshipping with us so that they will really want to attend. All visitors and newcomers are welcomed and invited to attend.

The group assists in the nearby parishes, when needed, by supplying Sunday School teachers and special church music. During the holiday seasons food and clothing is gathered and sent to poor families who need provisions.

The more knowledge one acquires the more eager he becomes to seek it. In general this is the objective of the French Club, which was organized in 1928 under the direction of Prof. H. O. Anderson.

Every student now taking French or any student who has already had French is eligible for membership into this club. The French Club, during its régime on the campus, has grown from a very small organization to one of the strongest and the interest shown is quite pleasing and forecasts its increasing popularity.

Regular meetings are held throughout the year and a full French program is rendered. A reading from the Bible followed by the Lord's Prayer—both of which are in French—opens the meeting. Then a lecture in French, usually by Professor Anderson himself, on some great French hero or some interesting feature of France is given. This has always been very instructive and is one of the main objectives of the club.

Since the class periods provide such a limited time for anything other than the regular lesson, Professor Anderson saw the need of extra time whereby French statesmen and the conditions of France could be discussed and also permit the students to practice the French that they learn in class. The fruits of his efforts is the French Club.

At the present time there seems to be coming into the foreground the common realization that the study of a foreign language does not concern itself with the method of verbal expression of the people of the foreign country alone; but equally important are the historical developments, the literature, the customs, the habits, and the art of the living of the people of the foreign country. This idea was more vividly expressed by a certain leader in the field of modern education when he said that there should no longer be a department of German or French, or of Spanish in the colleges of today; but there should be a department of Germany, or of France, or of Spain.

Under the present arrangement of the foreign language course in many colleges it is impossible to devote a sufficient length of time during the regular class periods to the discussion of the history, literature, customs, habits, and the art of living of a foreign people. This is true at Lenoir Rhyne College at the present time. Professor H. O. Anderson, head of the Department of Modern Languages, has been conscious of the fact that there is something more necessary for a well-rounded course in a foreign language than the study of grammar and composition alone. Since it is impossible to devote any considerable degree of time to the study of other things beyond grammar and composition during class periods, he has organized a German Club which makes it possible for those who are interested in German to learn more about the people, history and literature of Germany.

The "L" Club is the latest organization on the campus. All students, who had been awarded a letter in athletics, feeling that there should be a closer union between them, organized themselves into this club, which is now one of the strongest, most influential and most distinguished clubs on the campus.

Any student who has been officially awarded the "L," in any branch of athletics, is a member of this organization. It is governed by a written constitution which provides for the election of officers, admission and the work of the club.

The object of the club is to promote better and cleaner athletics at Lenoir Rhyne College and to bring the athletes of the institution into closer and more profitable relations with each other. It is also an aid to the social aspects of the college and in years to come is expected to be of great help both to the college and to the athletes.

Con. Spirito (♩=176)

f Fair star of Car-o-line, our col-lege glori-ous,
Fair star of Car-o-line, our Al-ma Ma-ter,

Our col-lege loved by all, to thee we sing
Our col-lege best of all in this broad land

May she for-lev-er shine, clear and bright, vic-tor-i-ous,
Thou best be-loved of ev-ry son and ev-ry daugh-ter, ff To her our song of loy-al-ty we bring. Fling

Thy chil-dren hail thy name on ev- - 'ry hand.

wide the Red and Black, O sing a- loud her prai-ses!

This is the song we sing, Le-noir Rhyne, to thee.

Martin Luther was outlawed at the Diet of Worms, May, 1521, where he reaffirmed his former doctrines. This sentence hurt him little, as he was arrested by his friends and spirited away at the order of the Elector of Saxony to the castle of Wartburg.

The football season of the Mountain Bears was not a great success as far as the games won were concerned, but considering the good sportsmanship and the fighting spirit displayed it must be noted that their efforts were not in vain. The team was very light and lacked experience and reserve material was very scarce. The team playing their last year under the leadership of Coach Gurley encountered some of the strongest teams they have ever met and with victories over Newberry, Elon and King. The real strength of the Bears had to be recognized and they were given considerable consideration. Gurley's last edition of Mountain Bears did remarkably well. The records show three games won and seven lost, which is not so bad when you consider their opposition.

Great passing attack proves disastrous to Lenoir Rhyne in the feature game of the year.

Boys' Basketball

Handicapped by inferior height and lack of experience the season failed to show a majority of games won. Although only four games were won the margin of defeat in only two games was decisive. The Bears displayed a never-die spirit that thrilled their audiences in every game played.

Little led the scoring with Overcash runner-up. Stasavich, playing his first season, showed up well at center and was third high scorer for the Bears. Hughes was outstanding all season at his regular birth at guard.

Rhyne, B. Troutman and H. Troutman played their last season for Lenoir Rhyne and gave an excellent account of themselves on the hardwood.

The high lights of the season was the great performance against Washington and Lee and victories over Catawba, Appalachian and High Point.

Girls' Basketball

The Lenoir Rhyne girls reeled off what is surely the most successful season they ever had, winning seven out of the eight games played. Opening the season at Wingate the Bearettes got off to a flying start defeating them 31-19 and moved on to Statesville the next night where they gave Mitchell College a 34-7 trouncing.

The co-eds traveled to Marion, Va., and there snowed Marion College under by the lopsided score of 39-15. Going to Appalachian the next night, the Bearettes lost their only game of the season, being nosed out by the State Teachers in the closing seconds of the game 31-29. In their first home appearance the girls kept their sensational stride to defeat Mitchell for the second time with an avalanche of goals, winning 41-13.

Led by Ledbetter, high-scoring forward, Appalachian was handed its only defeat of the season in a return game on the local court. The game was close and was easily the outstanding game of the season. Following this Marion College was again buried under a volley of baskets, losing this time to the tune of 51-11. Wingate closed the season by losing to the fast stepping co-eds 37-13. Only three players were lost by graduation.

1931 Baseball Season

The champions of the North State Conference experienced a "post-season success" in their 1931 campaign. Starting the season out strong but weakening as it progressed, the Mountain Bears witnessed somewhat of an unsuccessful season, however at the close of the season soon came the news that the Mountain Bears had been declared the 1931 champions of the newly organized conference!

The season opened with the Gurleymen staging a spectacular rally in the closing innings of the first game and overcoming a seven-run lead to nose out the Guilford Quakers 9-8. The Elon Christians came up for two games and on the first day turned the Bears back 13-10, but on the following day great playing behind Mesimer's sensational pitching let the Christians down 6-1.

The fourth game was the high-light of the season when Freddie Sellers, backed by great support, blanked the ancient rivals from Catawba College 9-0. The next game found the Lutherans at Davidson and playing an erratic brand of ball to lose to the Wildcats 6-1. Then the Bears lost two loosely played games to Appalachian 14-6 and 12-8. Returning home they again hit their winning stride and let Mars Hill down 5-3.

The Bears left for what proved to be somewhat of a disastrous trip, losing to Wake Forest 13-1 the first day and then going on to Quantico, Va., to lose two more games to "Uncle Sam's" Marines 18-8 and 14-2. Davidson closed the home season by giving the Bears a licking for the second time this season, 12-3.

Playing Guilford at Guilford, and losing a close game 8-6, what was considered a very poor season was brought to a close, but soon the news reached the campus that a check-up, after ruling out some of the games in which ineligible players of other schools participated in, showed that the Mountain Bears of Lenoir Rhyne College was at the top and that the Lutherans had been crowned the first champions of the new organization of the smaller colleges of North Carolina.

With only two lettermen missing from the 1931 squad and a crop of promising new material in camp, it now looks that the 1932 edition of Mountain Bears will be able to defend their title and once more float the banner that has so consistently floated over the Lenoir Rhyne College campus.

Martin Luther began the translation of the Bible during his stay at the Castle of Wartburg. His translation was a momentous achievement equalling even the great King James' Version in English.
